German Girls Work In Peat Bogs Near Spandau

German girls work in peat bogs.

WITH the loss of the Saar Valley, the coal center of old Germany, the present government was forced to seek elsewhere for its supply. Peat, the principal fuel in Ireland, is now being used in German industrial centers as a coal substitute. Great quantities are being produced from the extensive peat bogs at Spandau, near Berlin. German girls are shown here hard at work in the bogs at Spandau.

A Simple Form of Addition; The Sum Opens the Door of Health

Tuberculosis cannot stand fresh air and sunshine. So these three children, who have been sent to a sanatorium in the woods where the cold winds blow and snow is deep, have found the way to beat it. They are well again, and they are healthy, because they will become healthy and tuberculosis is swept away from them. The hardest fight against tuberculosis is fought among children. The scourge fastens itself to them frequently, and often remains until they have become adults. It kills 12,000 children annually, but many more grow to the age when they are most productive in the country, between 25 and 45 years of age. Then tuberculosis strikes them, and kills one in every four who die. It is for this reason, among many others, that the annual sale of Red Cross Seals is held every December under the direction of the National Tuberculosis Association, and 1,000 local and state organizations affiliated with it.

SOUR MILK FOR GROWING CHICKS

Nothing is Better For the Small Chickens — Poultry Notes.

Nothing is better for growing chicks than a liberal supply of sour milk. If it can be obtained, it always should be kept before them in an open dish or pan where they can eat and drink it freely. Where sour milk is fed, the amount of feed scraps in the dry mash may be reduced one half.

Plenty of fresh, clean water is absolutely necessary for all growing chicks. In hot weather, it should be given twice daily and put into fountain or dishes and placed in the shade as far as possible. Clean the water dish thoroughly each day before filling.

An abundance of free range with plenty of shade is necessary if chicks are to grow rapidly and develop into vigorous fowls. Growing chicks that have free range obtain quantities of green feed bugs, worms, and other things, therefore requiring less grain, and they are also less liable to sickness or disease. Give your chicks free range whenever possible.

Remember that it is much easier to keep birds healthy and well than to cure them after they are sick. Guard against disease by giving the fowls and chicks proper care at all times. Keep in mind the following: Clean, moist, cool, dry, dirt-free water, damp houses, drafts, and lack of care and attention breed disease. Sunlight, fresh air, clean houses and runs, good feed, fresh water and good care and attention mean health, vigor, and profits.

Remove the soil from houses having dirt floors and wash in clean sand, scrub down, or ashes. A general fall clean up will mean greater winter egg production.

Chickens will not give adequate returns in eggs or growth when kept under insanitary conditions.
